Record video and audio from any video source including USB webcams, analog webcams, television cards and even USB sound cards. You can also record video from your webcam or capture from your video source. You can use the control panel to add / edit / delete time stamps, change font colors, zoom in / zoom out, resize the record window, or change the look of the text display. You can control the operating of your webcam / camera through the software by creating control events via the online status window. The software supports replay, recording, forwarding, upload and stream broadcasting. The software supports overlapping with two pictures. Two applications can operate at the same time. By using recording timer events (such as with a television card), you can record video without broadcasting, and cut and paste the recorded images with the web browser with no sound. For example, you can capture 10 seconds of a television show to post on your web site. Elite MPEG4 Tool Features: Multiple-Remote Control Watch webcams from multiple locations. Record video from any number of locations simultaneously. You can create a single view of the room as if the room were one single video source. Online Streaming and Downloading You can view picture overlays and time stamps with your webcam / camera. Streaming is a way to get live pictures from a cam at home or a webcam at a school. Upload to FTP server Upload recorded videos to FTP server. The FTP server can be designed in any software or web site. The server can be used to get pictures from a PC to a web page or upload the pictures from a web page to a PC. Chat (optional) Elite MPEG4 Tool allows you to create your own chat room. If the recorded video is uploaded to a server, you can create a web site that displays the live video of your live webcam. You can create a live chat system for a company or a product promotion. You can add bonus images or text in your chat room. Remote Control You can control your webcam (or any video source) by remote control. You can manage the number of thumbnail pictures. You can specify the amount of time the images are shown. You can also specify the way to clean the remote-controlled image or the region.
